1. Mr. George F. Kennan, Counselor of the Department of State, requested briefing on the terrain and transportation on the Greco-Bulgar frontier, specifically wanting to know the character and capacity of the roads to be used and the traversability of the terrain to be crossed by Bulgarian troops in the event of a Bulgarian attack on Greece. He had previously queried the Army but considered their answers to be over-generalized and equivocal.

2. The briefing took place on 19 July 1950 and required approximately four hours of professional time. Coordination with other components with ORE was not required.
